Agricultural and Natural Resources and Consumer

Services programs help improve the lives of everyone in Giles County. County agricultural agents like Rose educate farmers and homemakers and promote extension programs. County extension agents encourage all youth to attend 4-H activities.

For the last two years, we have received a proclamation from our state senator about Extension Month.

The Giles County 4-H Program has been in existence throughout March that will focus on Extension Month,” explained Rose.

Aside from a proclamation from County Executive Janet Vanzant, there will be recognition of Extension Month, as well as on their webpage and on Facebook.

There will be an open house Monday-Friday, March 9-13, where the community is invited to visit the local office to learn more about what they have to offer. The first 500 visitors will receive complimentary gifts.

On March 15th of this year, we will have a meet the staff day from 2-4 p.m. “Rosen said. “We will get someone in our office who has never visited us or participated in our programs. Our Giles County Extension Office is located at a 132 S. Second St., Pulaski. For more information on services or Extension programs, call 363-3523.”
