

Department of Family & Consumer Sciences

---

ONLINE SOURCES OF JOB OPENINGS

January 2021

Barbara Metzger, Extension Specialist

Christopher T. Sneed, Assistant Professor and Consumer Economics Specialist

Ann A. Berry, Professor and Consumer Economics Specialist

Department of Family and Consumer Sciences

Sreedhar Upendram, Assistant Professor

Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics

Clint Cummings, Extension Specialist

Department of Family and Consumer Sciences

There are a variety of places and methods for finding employment. This publication highlights online resources that can assist you in finding a job. The key is to seek out and use those online outlets that are best suited for you and your job search.

Online Sources of Job Openings

LinkedIn

LinkedIn is the largest professional network on the internet. You can use LinkedIn to find the right job and connect and strengthen professional relationships. Once you create a LinkedIn profile, you will be able to share work experience, education and skills with a network of professionals, companies and groups in the areas where you are seeking employment.

You can use LinkedIn to research companies and reach out to the hiring community. You can also apply directly for jobs, save job searches and notify your connections and recruiters that you're open for job opportunities.

Make sure your resume is professional and polished before uploading to any job search site.

Indeed

Indeed is a free service to job seekers, where you can upload a resume, create job alert emails, search for jobs, save jobs and apply to jobs directly.

CareerBuilder

CareerBuilder is an employment website that helps job seekers and companies connect, giving people a chance to find their calling and many employers a chance to find and hire top talent.

Monster

Monster is a job search site that connects people to jobs where you can search for jobs and read career advice from Monster's job experts.

Glassdoor

Glassdoor is a website where you can search and apply for jobs on its platform and current and former employees can anonymously submit and view salaries.

Register on more than one site and set up alerts because each one offers different benefits.

Want More Information?

For additional information, download a copy of UT Extension Publication “W 936-D Finding Work – Where to Find A Job.” To learn more, connect with an Extension agent by contacting your county Extension office.

NOTE: UT Extension does not endorse any commercial sites named in this publication. These sites are used for illustrative purposes only.

UTIA.TENNESSEE.EDU

Programs in agriculture and natural resources, 4-H youth development, family and consumer sciences, and resource development. University of Tennessee Institute of Agriculture, U.S. Department of Agriculture and county governments cooperating. UT Extension provides equal opportunities in programs and employment.